Charles Loomis, better known as Motocross Mike, was a legendary motocross racer who overcame adversity to become a champion. Born in 1956 in a small town in Pennsylvania, Loomis began racing motorcycles at the age of seven.

Loomis quickly showed a natural talent for the sport, and by the age of 16, he was competing in professional motocross races. However, his career was nearly derailed in 1974 when he was involved in a serious crash that left him with a broken back.

Undeterred, Loomis underwent extensive rehabilitation and returned to racing just a year later. He went on to win numerous races and championships, including the AMA 250cc National Championship in 1980.

Loomis's success on the racetrack was due not only to his natural talent, but also to his unwavering determination and positive attitude. He was known for his aggressive riding style and his ability to push himself to the limit.

Off the track, Loomis was a role model for young motocross racers. He was always willing to share his knowledge and experience with others, and he was a strong advocate for safety in the sport.

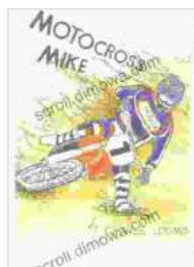

Loomis retired from racing in 1986, but he remained involved in the sport as a commentator and coach. He was inducted into the AMA Motorcycle Hall of Fame in 1999.

Loomis passed away in 2013 at the age of 57, but his legacy continues to inspire motocross racers around the world. He was a true pioneer of the sport, and his story is one of courage, determination, and triumph.
