Notre Dame football is more than just a game. It's a passion that runs deep in the hearts of players, coaches, and fans alike. In Notre Dame Football: Always, a collection of essays by some of the most legendary figures in the history of the game, you'll get an inside look at the passion and tradition that makes Notre Dame football so special.

With contributions from players like Joe Montana, Tim Brown, and Rudy Ruettiger, coaches like Lou Holtz and Ara Parseghian, and fans like Studebaker John and Dick Vitale, Notre Dame Football: Always is a must-read for any fan of the Fighting Irish.

Passion

The passion for Notre Dame football is evident in every aspect of the game. From the players who give their all on the field to the coaches who pour their hearts and souls into the program, to the fans who pack the stadium every Saturday, Notre Dame football is a passion that runs deep.

"Notre Dame football is a way of life," says Joe Montana, the legendary quarterback who won four Super Bowls with the San Francisco 49ers. "It's about more than just winning and losing. It's about representing a tradition and a legacy that is bigger than any one player or coach."

Tim Brown, another Notre Dame legend who went on to have a Hall of Fame career in the NFL, agrees. "Notre Dame football is a family," says Brown. "It's a brotherhood that lasts a lifetime. Once you're a part of the Notre Dame family, you're always a part of it."

Tradition

The tradition of Notre Dame football is as rich as any in college sports. The Fighting Irish have won 11 national championships, more than any other school in the country. They have also produced some of the greatest players in the history of the game, including Knute Rockne, Jim Brown, and Reggie Bush.

"The tradition of Notre Dame football is something that is passed down from generation to generation," says Lou Holtz, the legendary coach who led the Fighting Irish to a national championship in 1988. "It's a tradition of excellence, both on and off the field."

Ara Parseghian, another legendary Notre Dame coach, agrees. "Notre Dame football is a tradition of winning," says Parseghian. "But it's also a tradition of ng things the right way. It's a tradition of class and integrity."

Fans

Notre Dame football fans are some of the most passionate in the country. They pack the stadium every Saturday, rain or shine, to cheer on their beloved Fighting Irish. And they're not just fair-weather fans. They're there through the good times and the bad, supporting their team through thick and thin.

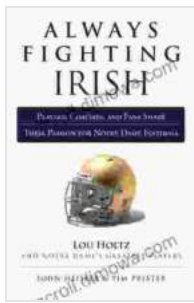

"Notre Dame football fans are the best in the world," says Studebaker John, the legendary Notre Dame fan who has been attending games for over 60 years. "They're passionate, they're loyal, and they're always there for their team."

Dick Vitale, the ESPN college basketball analyst, agrees. "Notre Dame football fans are the most knowledgeable and passionate fans in the country," says Vitale. "They know the game, and they love their team."
