By John Duncan

This book is a fascinating account of a voyage to Africa in the years 1840, 1841, and 1842. The author, John Duncan, was a young Scottish doctor who traveled to Africa to study the effects of the climate on the health of Europeans. He visited the islands of Madeira, Sierra Leone, Teneriffe, St.

Jago, Cape Coast, and Fernando Po, and he provides a detailed account of the people, places, and customs of each place.

Duncan's book is a valuable source of information about Africa in the mid-19th century. He provides a firsthand account of the slave trade, the British colonial presence, and the lives of the African people. He also includes a wealth of information about the natural history of Africa, including its plants, animals, and climate.

Travels in Madeira, Sierra Leone, Teneriffe, St. Jago, Cape Coast, Fernando Po is a classic work of travel literature. It is a must-read for anyone interested in Africa, history, or travel.
